Mayor's Message

'You have to work to get to Port McNeill'

That is the conclusion from many of the travellers that find their way here. They have gone that extra mile and are rewarded with the beauty, serenity, adventure, and warm welcomes.

For some the long drive beyond Campbell River is an obstacle to be overcome. Largely uninhabited, mountains, remote, lacking cell service, and not for the timid. That is beyond their comfort zone for many foreign and domestic tourists.

For the marine visitors, it is the potential trials of a long transit of Johnstone Strait that keeps them fearful crowded in Desolation Sound and the Gulf Islands.

The woman who let me (and my two items) ahead of her in the grocery store this week was enjoying her 20th annual visit to our marina. It is work to get to Port McNeill, but for those who brave it, let's keep that welcome warm for them.
